

Loquitor Braethen

Race: Wood Elf

Gender: Male

Physical Description: Brown Hair, Blue Eyes, 5'11" tall, and weight of 24 gallons of Mead

Hometown: Creascentwood, Kingdom of Crystalmyst

Professions: Count of Crescentwood, Master of Hospitality for Aire of Tir Thalor, Ambassador for the Fairie Kingdom of Ravenhilt, Bartender

FALO Standing: Elder

Loquitor Breathen was raised as an orphan at a Tavern that was owned by various humans throughout his early years. He was left there by a wizard after his mother was killed trying to escape from Deckla and his minions. Loquitor's father Braethen did not know about him until many years later because he had only met his mother briefly while he was on this side of the fairy ring from Crystalmyst prior to the Cataclysm (Crystalmyst is now part of this realm on the continent of E'Atara where most FALO adventures take place). Loquitor's mother slipped away from Braethen one night while he was asleep because she was on the run from Deckla (a Drow who was Loquitor's former arch enemy and was killed several years ago).

Loquitor has two half sisters in the clan, Kyara and Kittarina.

Loquitor was a notorious flirt like his father, before he met the love of his life Sabine Eastwind. A magical key helped Loquitor and Sabine break the ice.

Having traveled with Angelica many times to her kingdom of Ravenhilt she has appointed him as an ambassador for her kingdom.

Loquitor was appointed as a Baron in Crystalmyst after he saved a shipment of special wood that was being delivered from Crystalmyst to Rodin Rae. He saved the shipment from a band of Trolls by getting them to drink until the sun came up.

Loquitor won the archery tournament at Springfest a few years in a row and once won the archery tourney and the boffer weapon tourney in the same year.

Loquitor's Bartending skills are well known.

Loquitor is the newest member of Tir Thalor (on this continent), after holding the honorary title of Master of Hospitality for many years.

Currently Loquitor is the Count of Creasentwood and leader of the knights of the Creasant Moon (which Granarinth and Khallil are also members).

If you want to start a conversation with Loquitor, ask him how trouble with the separatist movement in Crystalmyst is going. Crystalmyst was in another realm before the Cataclysm and some of the Elves in the kingdom do not trust anyone that is not from Crystalmyst. Their movement is led by Orion Silverleaf and they have been able to elude capture by some magical means of moving throughout the realm.